

Trust God, with or without "signs"

"Do I always have to be pulling rabbits out of hats?" (God)

Although I had already been ministering for many years at the time, on 28 March 2008 God gave me a "life mission". In an open vision I saw a valley full of people that I was called for. (Who they are and what I was called to do is not relevant now, I will gladly share that face to face with anyone but not here.)

Since that day, when God gives me something new to do (like for instance the Pray615 project) I know where its root is, and I know it's God.

We should not need God to every time send messages with fireworks and show. Jesus said only a wicked generation seeks signs the whole time, but many believe every message from God has to be accompanied by a big "event" before it can be important.

My dear friends, in the old days God spoke through prophets with signs, today He speaks in your heart by the Holy Spirit. We should be led by the peace of God says the word, not by outward signs and the Bible makes it clear that signs and wonders are for the unbeliever's sake, not the believer's sake.

When you know a message is of God, then treat it with the respect and urgency it deserves, without waiting for a rabbit from a hat.

Love in Christ
